Williamson College Professor Dr. Neil T. Anderson to Discuss Resolving Personal and Spiritual Conflicts Sept. 12 in Franklin

FRANKLIN, Tenn. (Aug. 19, 2013) – Every church has members who are struggling with fear, anxiety, depression, anger, marital conflicts and addictive behaviors. How can the church help them resolve these conflicts? Is Jesus really the answer? Do they just need to be disciplined, or do they need counseling? Inner healing? Deliverance? What if they need all four, and if so, how can that be accomplished?

On Sept. 12 from 6:30-8 p.m. Dr. Neil T. Anderson, an internationally known minister, speaker, author and professor/chaplain at Williamson College, will answer those questions and explain how the ministry of reconciliation integrates with the ministries of discipleship, counseling, inner healing and deliverance.

He will speak at the college's monthly Veritas (which in Latin means "truth") service, held at 274 Mallory Station in Franklin. The event will also feature worship and music led by students of Williamson College.

Attendees also will hear from leaders of several local churches who are effectively using Anderson's Discipleship Counseling approach, which is based on his book Discipleship Counseling. Admission is free, and the public is invited. The first one hundred people who come will receive a free copy of his book Liberating Prayer.

"The only biblical means of resolving personal and spiritual conflicts is genuine repentance and faith in God, and that can only happen if God Himself is the wonderful counselor," Anderson said. "One of our greatest needs in the church today is for people to have a truth encounter and experience real freedom in Christ."

Anderson is founder and president emeritus of Freedom in Christ Ministries, which is a rapidly expanding global ministry with offices in several countries. Prior to his international ministry, he was chairman of the practical theology department at Talbot School of Theology for 10 years. He has five earned degrees, including two doctorates, and has authored or co-authored 60 books. His first two books, Victory Over the Darkness and The Bondage Breaker, have each sold 1.4 million copies.

Anderson is uniquely qualified to discuss and answer questions about discipleship, counseling, inner healing and deliverance. He has written books about depression, anxiety disorders, anger, chemical addiction, sexual addiction, marriage and reconciliation. Anderson will teach two classes this fall at Williamson College: “Living Free in Christ” and “Discipleship Counseling.” Both classes may be audited. For more information about the classes, contact Susan Mays at susan@williamsoncc.edu or call (615) 550-3161.

Founded in 1998, Williamson College is a non-profit organization that serves students of all ages, including non-traditional ones who are already in the workforce. Classes are usually held one day a week and one class at a time with nine start times during the year. Williamson College is not related to a denomination and is guided by an eleven-member board of trustees. For more information, visit www.williamsoncc.edu.
